an introduction to the ONLINE PROGRAM

Ethics

A PRACTICAL FRAMEWORK
for Professional Advisers

Enrich Australia's online Ethics program is an easy-to-use, engaging process designed to equip advisers with ways to think around conflict and then resolve ethical challenges.

It delivers a practical method for articulating an adviser's own principles, which then enables them to devise a personal Code of Ethics. This versatile instrument can then act as a benchmark or reference point for applying to a wide range of professional and personal dilemmas, and for communicating their integrity and professionalism to clients.

Summary of content: The program begins with a preview of its format, content and assessment process. It then moves on to a succinct discourse on ethics, which sets the scene on this broad and extensively debated subject.

The image-based exercises and worksheet materials included in the program introduce a process of reflection, enlighten advisers as to their personal values, and then focus insights from this process into how these values form their ethical position.

This accredited program provides the means for advisers to obtain the full requirement of CPD points in Ethics for FPA membership and by many financial services organisations over a triennium period. The Q&A-format assessment tool also requires them to evaluate an ethical response to some forms of conflict they may come across in their work.

Accreditation: The program format incorporates a training assessment delivering 3 CPD points in Ethics (Competency: Generic Knowledge–Ethics).

Completion time: The program and training assessment takes around 1.5 to 2 hours to complete, depending on the depth of consideration to the exercises and questions an adviser may wish to give.

Cost: Price of an individual program is $120 plus GST. For more information (including discount rates for bulk orders) please call (02) 8267 6303, email training@enrichaustralia.com
